VISHWA is sitting alone on a bench.

SAI notices him and walks towards the bench.

SCENE 2 – THE OBSERVATION

[0:15-0:40]

SAI comes and sits on the bench near VISHWA.

SAI looks at VISHWA.

After observing him, SAI places one leg over the other and starts shaking his leg.

VISHWA notices SAI's leg. He looks at it for a while.

The camera holds on VISHWA's expression.

There is no dialogue. The audience is left to interpret VISHWA's reaction.

SAI picks up the coins and leaves angrily. VISHWA remains on the bench.

TITLE CARD

YOSI

[1:45-1:52]

The screen cuts to black. The title YOSI appears.

SCENE 6 – THE REALISATION

[1:52-2:00]

After the title card "YOSI," the film cuts back to VISHWA.

The camera slowly reveals that VISHWA has only one leg.

The audience suddenly understands the earlier moments.

When VISHWA looked at SAI's crossed and shaking leg, he wasn't looking with disrespect or judging SAI. He was simply observing something that was meaningful to him because of his own situation.

And when SAI's coins fell, VISHWA didn't refuse to help. He couldn't.

SAI had misunderstood his actions and judged him without knowing his story.

CUT TO BLACK.
